MD Web Solutions Signs Reseller Agreement with eMedical Systems to Distribute The AMCIS Network® EMR to the Northwestern Region

Tampa, FL – 5/22/09 - MD Web Solutions, the developer of the AMCIS Network® electronic medical record (EMR), announced today that they have signed an agreement with eMedical Systems to become a reseller of the AMCIS Network in the Northwestern region of the U.S.

This agreement will give providers in this area a superior choice when it comes to EMRs. "Brand recognition of the AMCIS Network is increasing rapidly," said Cyril Spiro, M.D., MBA, founder of M.D. Web Solutions. "People can see that our product has capabilities beyond anything in the market today."

The deal also gives eMedical Systems a new way to bring value to its current client base of healthcare professionals. "We've been serving the medical community for over 10 years. Our clients trust us to bring them the best solutions and we feel that AMCIS is the best EMR offering on the market today," said John Wahlquist, President of eMedical Systems.

About the AMCIS Network®

The AMCIS Network offers its customers a complete EMR solution. This includes its Patient Care Manager, which is the software system that provides all of the functionality of the AMCIS Network within the doctor's office; it also includes a Patient HealthPort, the secure patient portal to the AMCIS Network; the AMCIS Community Viewer which is an enterprise solution allowing secure access to patient medical records for approved medical facilities outside of the doctor's office; and The AMCIS Physician Exchange which allows secure exchange of patient data and interoffice communication between practices in The AMCIS Network.

MD Web Solutions is a patient care company dedicated to simplifying the processes of using health information and enhancing the care experience for both doctors and patients. Their core business is health care software development; their expertise is managing patient care. What makes them different is that their products have been designed by physicians who know what physicians need. Every product they offer is created from this point of view.

About eMedical Systems Inc.

eMedical Systems is a healthcare IT solutions company catering to physicians practices for over 10 years. The staff at eMedical Systems recognizes that physicians and their managers don't have the time to become informed about the latest technologies that are available and what is needed for their IT solutions to run smoothly. On a daily basis, eMedical Systems is in touch with manufacturing leaders to keep providers up to date. As the needs of practices change they can help look ahead and advise clients on the best available solutions.

They recognize that software is a tool to provide efficiency and savings for a doctor's office. All the components of an office need to work together. They provide a full front office solution for small practices. So while they install, service and support an EMR, practice management software and the hardware necessary to keep an office running, they also give accounting and management overview and support for receivables.

"It's great to be a partner with a company like MD Web Solutions who has such a rich product as the AMCIS Network EMR. We can now bring a greater depth of knowledge and resources to our local community and still provide full service support," said John Wahlquist.
